

LEADERSHIP DURING CRISIS PROVIDING PURPOSE

Make work meaningful

“For me, providing purpose means seeing the bigger picture and inspiring others. It’s so easy to lose yourself in the details. Sometimes we need to take a step back to reflect how to change the approach.”

We are all learning & unlearning together. I took this opportunity to try new ways of communication, develop new routines and focus on wellbeing - physical health as well as mental health (rented a spinning bike, did yoga as well as meditating online) & inspire my team to do the same.

As leaders, we need to communicate and provide a platform for our people where they can share challenges each of them go through. The importance of WHY is crucial in helping us adjust to the new normal. Once you connect that, the team will deliver the quality. We work towards building a stronger and safer future. The team has been phenomenal in this transition period.
